

The spider knows much more about the fly
than the fly itself.

In between objects and materials in the city there is some kind of flirting all the time... For example a bucket can be filled with concrete. And this concrete can hold a stick. And this alliance between these three urban beings can become a new, hybrid being, that works for another specific situation. That's what attracts me to objects in the city.

I hear you're interested in genocide.

Do you know what it is?

Genocide is a cheese sandwich.

You can take the Genocide Convention, fold it,
and take a cheese sandwich and wrap it inside.

That's what it's all about.
